

Me llamo: _____

Unidad 1 Lección 2 Grammar Notes

Complete the notes below, using your book. Pages for each category are next to the topic. Go to that page and look for the grammar note (marked by green).

Page 58--- "ser" (nota grammatical)

- Use Ser to describe what people are like (characteristics and personality)

Page 61--- Definite and Indefinite Articles

- English grammar connection: Definite articles (in English, "the") are used with nouns to indicate specific persons, places, or things. Indefinite articles (a, an) are used with nouns to indicate nonspecific persons, places, or things.
- In Spanish, articles match nouns in gender and number.
Here's how: ALL Spanish nouns, even if they refer to objects, are either masculine or feminine.

--Nouns ending in -o are usually masculine.

--Nouns ending in -a are usually feminine.

	Definite article	Noun	Indefinite Article	Noun
Masculine Singular	el The	chico boy	un A	chico boy
Masculine Plural	los The	chicos boys	unos Some	chicos boys
Feminine Singular	la The	chica girl	una A	chica girl
Feminine Plural	las The	chicas girls	unas Some	chicas girls

Los libros son para la maestra.
(match) (match)

The books are for the teacher